A Profound Secret

Located at the northwest Corner of Arapaho and Addison Roads, this artwork was commissioned by the Arbor Foundation and installed in 2015. "A Profound Secret" uses corten steel and pieces from the original cotton gin facility in Addison. The cotton gin, which was built in 1902, was located about 150 yards south of the installation. The title of the piece comes from a passage in a letter written by Eli Whitney, developer of the cotton gin, to his father, asking him to keep "a profound secret" until a patent was secured for the design.

AAF Mission

The mission of the Addison Arbor Foundation is to promote sustainable natural environments within the Addison community and to enhance Town parks/spaces with plantings and public art.

The Addison Arbor Foundation is a 501(c) (3) Non-Profit Organization. The Board of Directors and Friends of AAF are unpaid volunteers. All donations go directly to projects.

Oaks North Japanese Maples

AAF planted Japanese Maples in the Oaks North area of Addison in 2014.

Jacks of All Trades

Located in Les Lacs Park, these realistic jack rabbit sculptures were commissioned by the Foundation in 2014, and installed in a natural rock setting. This is the actual location that jackrabbits inhabited prior to the neighborhood development.

LIGHT and ENERGY

Restored and installed in 2013 at the corner of Marsh and Beltway. These pieces are 24 feet high and weigh 1750 pounds each.

North Addison Park

This iconic feature of the park was refurbished along with park landscape improvements in 2014 by a joint effort of the Addison Parks Department and the Arbor Foundation.

Red Sculpture Parkview Place

Recently donated to the Arbor Foundation this large red piece is about 25 feet high and will be placed in Parkview Place of the North Quorum area. The artist is unknown at this point.

Folded Square Alphabet D

By artist Fletcher Benton - restored and installed in 2012.

Beltway/Proton Corner

This gateway corner will be completely refurbished by the Town of Addison in 2015, and incorporate the blue Lost in Wisconsin sculpture graciously donated to the Arbor Foundation by Nic Noblique.
